"Another year, another conflict. You would think they would learn with time."

"They do, my dear. But as with everything else, time is the most important part. And time they seem to not have had enough. Maybe one day, maybe never. Who knows?"

"That is not a very bright future you are suggesting there, Albus."

"It wasn't meant to be. Time is all that is required. And no one, may they be witch, wizard or muggle folk, can achieve this goal otherwise."
